Following the sale, Matthew Barton, said: "I was very pleased with the overall result of the sale. The top lot attracted a lot of interest from collectors and sold for almost ten times its estimate after two collectors competed fiercely on the phones. The Chinese objects created alot of excitement and again, telephone bidding was strong. Silver as a whole performed well and saw large impressive pieces sell well and the results for the jewellery – a new addition to the sales – were very encouraging with a gold and turquoise necklace, circa 1840 selling for £3,120 against an estimate of £800-1,000. I look forward to my next sale in May 2011."
